ABOUT THE ARTIST

Since 2010, I have been painting people in harmony with nature. Over time, I have specialized in oil painting and now create realistic portraits, landscapes, and abstract works. From a young age, I have been fascinated by the power of art—an inspiration sparked in the great European museums like the Louvre in Paris. These experiences pointed me toward my path as a visionary artist of this century.

My work is driven by emotional storytelling, focusing primarily on the experiences of women in today's society. Through vibrant interplay with natural elements, I strive to capture both the nuanced feelings that women carry and the ways in which they influence—and are influenced by—the world around them. This perspective resonates with my strong belief that art can integrate personal emotions and broader cultural narratives, offering viewers a new lens through which to reflect on their own lives.

As a young artist, I continuously explore various techniques and blend them to forge a style that speaks authentically to my subjects. Currently based in my studio in Basel, I regularly organize national and international exhibitions, aiming to share my evolving vision with a global audience.
